A DARKENED NURSERY.

There's room enough in the nursery now,
'Twas crowded a little before;
For when the crib in the corner sat,
The rockers came close to the door;
But the light was sweet and the air was soft,
And the room was filled with cheer;
For we all were charmed to the chosen spot
By the voice of the baby dear.

Where is the sunshine?
Where is the noise?
Where are the playthings gone?
What shall I do with my empty arms?
Sitting alone, alone!
What shall I do with the vacant crib?
Where shall I set this chair?
Must the little one's clothes come down?
O, let me leave them there!

Fold the little garments,
Lay them softly by;
Put away the playthings,
Check the choking sigh.

Turn thee to thy duties,
Take up life again,
Newly consecrated
By this precious pain.

WORK—thy face full heavenward;
Give thy life to God,
His sweet peace shall keep thee,
If thou "kiss the rod."

Letter from New York.

NEW YORK, July 25th, 1869.

DEAR GLOBE:—I've been thinking of you and of my long absence from your columns, doubtless to the intense relief of those who search said columns for amusement or instruction; but in the words of the funny man in Motley, "here I am again." With a bow and a scrape I ask admittance; "thank you—take my hat."

New York—the city of our land—fair, frail, honest, sharp, cosmopolitan, the American kaleidoscope—ever changing, ever new—willing to greet you kindly, to forget, bury and damn you—just the place to become an ant, to burrow, to horde, to starve, to grope, to do just like ten thousand other ants who live and move, battle, crush, and hurry over you. What an atom a man is here?—"Found drowned, an unknown man;" "Died from the effects of the sun, a stranger;" "Murdered by roughs, a person unknown;" "Died from wet and exposure, no clue to his identity;" the morgue, twelve men, a verdict, and a pine coffin, and so goes out a life—noted carelessly—and we turn to "gold" or Erie, and devour greedily. One man—we know so many—"poor devil, it was his luck" (public verdict.)

I like this place, it is so truly Democratic. They don't ask if his father was a gentleman, or his ma moved in good society, or if he is of "our set," but "is he honest, intelligent, reliable," if so his place is for him. They give him a start, steady him, and then leave him to fight out his life. You meet men every day here who can count their wealth by hundreds of thousands, and their talisman can be yours—pluck, energy. Twenty-four hours a day. How I was once appalled by the fact—so much time, so little to do—and now I know how little it represents—present, past, and so little to show for it—little done, much undone.

I hear you say, "Confound the fellow, we don't want to hear this stuffy moralizing; we can get much better for less time spent from the first soul-saving tract in the hands of the pious distributor who carries conviction and utter annihilation for the pleasure it affords him." "Nuf. sed." I'm off. Choose—news, scandal, rumor, what will you have? Shall I don the cap and bells, and by uncouth jest and gesture make evident my claims as Momus' devotee? or will you let me answer by presenting my handiest card, gossip, (may it be trump.)

The weather. We here in New York have been blessed as yet with a lovely summer; at odd times hot as Tophet, but a delightful breeze from our waters every evening brings solace and refreshment; between the puffs of my pipe am I sensible of its gentle presence, and think were I at Long Branch "on the beach" what more could be mine, and so am content.

Now, what would your good people think of an opera selection raising in your midst on your quiet, staid Sunday evening? As I write, one of Offenbach's gems charms my ear from the lips of some lovely creature whose form is partly hidden by her curtained window. 'Tis nothing. Mrs. Grundy, dear, lenient old woman, smiles approvingly and calls it "sacred music." In fact here one "gangs his ain gait," and so long as his gait trouble me not, neither I him. On the Bowery, quaint, queer old thoroughfare, whose fame is wide spread, or in Chatham street, the "home of the Jews," can you to-day purchase an outfit "cheap for cash."—Jewelry, trimming, furnishing, hat, boot, all sorts of stores, keep open doors, and the big spirit of tolerance interferes not. On every line plies the street car, loaded down with human freight leaving for a breathing spell on the Hudson or the Harlem. Jersey with her beer gardens attract many—the Central Park never fails its votaries. New York does her pleasures as her business, with a rush, nor do the churches suffer; attentive and appreciative congregations fill them, doubtless with as much devotion and good results as in our more narrow minded, staid neighbor, Philadelphia. The belles and beaux of the Avenue do their piety in the most approved garb at Newport, Saratoga, Long Branch or among the summits of the Catskill or White Mountains, giving we stay-at-homes more room and quiet for our devotions (see dote on our privilege.)

Theatres, despite the absence of many of their patrons, find their seats well filled. Lydia Thompson with her blondes still hold their undisputed sway over us, where we feast our eyes on pretty, dashing women, causing many a bachelor the sin of covetness. Our press launches its thunders at their looseness, but it availeth nothing but an advertisement. Eve's legacy to man—curiosity—holds strongly to us, and from wondering how bad it can be we end by seeing for ourselves, and we are more amused than shocked, and see no reason why we should be numbered among their denunciators. For myself, I see nothing but pretty, dashing, witty women, only too attractive. Booth's beautiful theatre finds ample work for its pasteboard dispensers. Night after night do well filled houses attest the popularity of "Enoch Arden"—a perfect gem beautifully set. The poem grows upon us as we see its characters moving neath our eyes, and so well that it comes to us more plaintively than ever. Few hearts but feel the pang in unison with the poor, broken man whose weary "waiting for a sail" brings him naught but a living, terrible death; woman, whose ever sympathetic heart gives to he who seeks it, pity, pays tribute in her tears.

Lucille Western at our Academy of Music, or rather Fiske's (who, useful man, caters for our every want—items, cheap conveyance through our streets, convenient ferryage, instant death, or a gentle roast upon the Erie—takes you to Newport and gives you the inimitable "Dodsworths" to make your passage one of delightful harmony—anything you want, gentlemen,) has been doing the terrible in woman's line and successfully. The funny man, Fox, Humpty Dumpties us or otherwise, and a jolly place it is to drive off the blues or aid digestion by facial exertion. I've run this theatrical train long enough, but I could stop for many more equally presentable people. Doubtless you think I've given enough of this class, so we will off again. My last station and that general news.

Query, do you want to go to Cuba? If so, come along; I will find you a private position, (you are not ambitious of decorations,) good pay (for a patriot,) the fun of running Uncle Sam's blockade, and the delightful certainty of death from yellow fever, or Spanish flies (bullets.)

May be you are an admirer of natural history and would like to see the elephant—the gentle creature lives at the Park and eats hay—or his human prototype, who would add to your wisdom and kindly care for your cash; will post you how to satiate a Huntingdon appetite on the cost of a cream (which means lunch.) In fact, dear Globe, knowledge and I have shaken hands and sworn friendship. I expect a diploma soon, and then as a Directory or walking Chamber's Encyclopedia will I be found invaluable, or unreliable. Every seeker will render his own verdict, and I can only say "it was well meant."

Not knowing how this effort will be received, and not caring to further destroy paper in your service, permit me to bid you a very good evening—Should you again desire my presence, a line, or a gentle smile, or insinuation on the face of the Globe, you will ever find a ready rejoinder from N. S.

☞ Charles Lamb tells his sad experience, as warning to young men, in the following language: "The waters have gone over me. But out of the black depths, could I be heard, I would cry out to all those who have set a foot in the perilous flood. Could the youths to whom the flavor of the first wine is as delicious as the opening scenes of life or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise, look into my desolation, and be made to understand how drear it is, when he shall feel himself going down a precipice, with open eyes and a passive will to his destruction, and have no human power to stop it, and yet feel it all the way emanating from himself, to see all godliness emptied out of him, and yet not able to forget a time when it was otherwise; to bear the pitcous spectacle of his own ruin; could he see my fevered eye, fevered with last night's drinking, and feverishly looking for to night's repeating of the folly; could he but feel the body of death out of which I cry hourly with feebler outcry to be delivered, it were enough to make him dash the sparkling beverage to the earth, in all the pride of its mantling temptation."

A TRYING EXPERIMENT.—Five young men in Berlin lately made an agreement for a wager, to see who of them could keep awake for a whole week.—They all held out for about five days and a half, by drinking largely of strong coffee, and keeping up a constant round of active exercise and exciting amusements. At the end of that time two of them yielded to drowsiness; a third soon fell asleep while riding, tumbled from his saddle and broke his arm; a fourth was attacked by severe sickness, and compelled to retire from the list; the fifth held out to the end, but lost twenty-five pounds of flesh in winning the wager. Long ago, Frederick the Great and Voltaire made a similar experiment, making use of the same stimulant of strong coffee, but they did not succeed in driving away sleep for longer than four days.

☞ Our affections for our children and our grand-children garland the heart with the buds and blossoms of a second Spring; they are the holy band whose miraculous touch can bid the thorn of mortality break forth into flowers even in the Winter of our days.

TROUBLE.—Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you, for trouble rarely troubles people who never trouble themselves about trouble.

"Died Poor."

"It was a sad funeral to me," said the speaker; "the saddest I have attended for many years."

"That of Edmonson?"

"Yes."

"How did he die?"

"Poor—poor as poverty. His life was one long struggle with the world, and at every disadvantage. Fortune mocked him all the while with golden promises that were destined never to know fulfillment."

"Yet he was patient and enduring," remarked one of the company.

"Patient as a christian—enduring as a martyr, was answered. "Poor man! He was worthy of a better fate. He ought to have succeeded, for he deserved success."

"Did he not succeed?" questioned the one who had spoken on his patience and endurance.

"No sir. He died poor, just as I have stated. Nothing that he put his hand to ever succeeded. A strange fatality seemed to attend every enterprise."

"I was with him in his last moments," said the other, "and he thought he died rich."

"No, he has left nothing behind," was replied. "The heirs will have no concern as to the administration of his estate."

"And a legacy of noble deeds that were done in the name of humanity," remarked another.

"And precious examples," said a third.

"Lessons of patience in suffering; of hope in adversity; of heavenly confidence when the sunbeams fell upon his bewildering path," was the testimony of another.

"And high truths, manly courage, heroic fortitude."

"Then he died rich," was the emphatic declaration. "Richer than the millionaire who went to his long home on the same day a miserable pauper in all but gold. A sad funeral did you say? No, my friend, it was a triumphant procession! Not the burial of a human clod, but the ceremonies attendant on the translation of an angel. Did not succeed! Why, his whole life was a series of success. In every conflict he came off the victor, and now the victor's crown is on his brow. Any grasping, soulless, selfish man, with a moderate share of brains, may gather in money, and learn the art of keeping it, but not one in a hundred can conquer bravely in the battle of life, as Edmonson has conquered, and step forth from the ranks of men a Christian hero. No, no; he did not die poor, but rich—rich in neighborly love, and rich in celestial affections. And his heirs have an interest in the administration of his affairs. A large property has been left, and let them see to it that they do not lose precious things through false estimates and ignorant depreciations."

"You have a new way of estimating the wealth of man," said the one who had first expressed sympathy for the deceased."

"Is it not the right way?" was answered. "There are higher things to gain in this world than wealth that perishes. Riches of princely value ever reward the true merchant, who trades for wisdom, buying it with the silver of truth and the gold of love. He dies rich who can take his treasures with him to the new lands where he is to abide forever, and he who has to leave all behind on which he placed his affection, dies poor indeed. Our friend Edmonson died richer than a Girard or an Astor; his monument is built of good deeds and noble examples. It will abide forever!

POETIC SADNESS.—One of the saddest and most touching speeches that we ever read is that of the venerable poet William Cullen Bryant at the late commencement of Williams College.—Being called upon to speak at the annual dinner, he said:

"It has occurred to me, since I, in the decline of life, came to visit once more this seat of learning in which our youth are trained to succeed us on the stage of the world, that I am in the situation of one who, standing on a spot desolate with winter and dim with twilight, should be permitted by a sort of miracle to look upon a neighboring region glorious with the bloom of spring and bright with the beams of morning. On the side where I stand are herbless fields and leafless woods, pools sheeted with ice, a frozen soil, and the shadows of approaching night. On the side to which I look are emerald meadows, fields of springing wheat, orchards in bloom, transparent streams, and a genial sunshine. With me, it is time to go into for my further hopeful tillage, and if the plough were put into the ground, its coulter would be obstructed by the ice-bound sods. On the side to which I look I see the tokens of judicious cultivation and careful tendance, recompensed by a free and promising growth. I rejoice at the kindly care thus bestowed, and my hope and prayer is that under such auspices all the promise which meets my eyes may be amply fulfilled, and that from these luxuriant fields a harvest may be gathered richer and more abundant than has yet been stored in the granaries of our land."

TO TOBACCO CHEWERS.—Some arithmetician calculates that if a tobacco chewer consumes two inches of a plug a day, for fifty years, he will chew in that period 6,475 feet, or nearly half a mile of solid tobacco, half an inch thick, and two inches broad, costing $2,005! And ejecting one pint of saliva per day for fifty years, the total would swell into nearly 2,300 gallons, a respectable lake almost large enough to float the Great Eastern in!"

A Legend of 1776.

Night had set in deep, and in a small log hut, situated a few miles from Trenton, N. J., sat five men, four of whom were seated at an old oaken table in the centre of the room, engaged in playing cards, while they frequently moistened their throats with large draughts from an earthen jug which stood on the table.

They were heavily bearded, coarse-looking men, and from their dress, which somewhat resembled the British uniform, they were evidently Tories. The other was a stout-built, young man, clad in the Continental uniform. He sat in one corner of the room with his face buried in his hands.

"Tom," said one of the Tories, rising from the table, and seating himself near the young prisoner, for such he evidently was: "Tom, you and I were schoolboys together, and I love you yet. Now why can't you give up your wild notions and join us? You are our prisoner, and if you don't we shall hand you over to the headquarters to-morrow, while if you join us, your fortune is made, for with your bravery and talents you will distinguish yourself in the royal army, and after the rebellion is crushed out, your case shall be rewarded by knighthood and promotion in the army. Now there are two alternatives, which do you choose?"

"Neither," said the young man raising his head and looking the Tory straight in the eye.

"I am now, as you say, your prisoner, but when the clock strikes twelve I shall disappear in a cloud of fire and smoke, and neither you nor your comrades, not even myself can prevent it. You may watch me as closely as you please, tie me hand and foot if you will, but a higher power than yours has ordained that I shall leave you at that time."

"Poor fellow! his mind wanders," said the Tory; "he'll talk differently in the morning." And he returned to his seat at the table, leaving the youth with his head again resting in his hands.

When the clock struck eleven the prisoner drew a pipe and some tobacco from his pocket, and asked the Tory leader if he had any objection to his smoking. "None in the least," he said, adding with a laugh, "that is, if you'll promise not to disappear in a cloud of tobacco smoke."

The young man made no reply, but immediately filled his pipe, having done which he arose and commenced pacing the floor.

He took a half a dozen turns up and down each side of the room, approaching nearer the table each time, when having exhausted his pipe, he returned to his seat, and, slowly knocking the ashes out of his pipe, said:

"There, boys; it's twelve o'clock, and I must leave you. Good bye."

Immediately all around the room were seen streaks of fire bissing and squirming; the cabin was filled with dense sulphurous smoke amidst which was a clap of thunder. The Tories sat in their chairs paralyzed with fright.

The smoke cleared away but the prisoner was nowhere to be seen. The table was overturned, the window was smashed to pieces and one chair was lying on the ground outside of the building.

The Tory leader, after recovering from his stupor, gave one glance around the room and sprang out of the window, followed by his comrades. They ran through the forest at the top of their speed, in the direction of the British encampment, leaving their muskets and other arms to the mercy of the flames, which had now begun to devour the cabin.

The next day two young men, dressed in the Continental uniform were seen standing near the ruins of the old cabin. One was our prisoner of the night previous. "Let us hear all about it, Tom," said the other.

"Well," said he, "last evening, as I was passing this place, two Tories ran out of the cabin and took possession of me. Before I could make any resistance they took me in, and who do you suppose I saw as a leader of their party but John Barton, our old schoolmate. He talked with me and tried to induce me to join them; but I told them I couldn't do it; that at twelve o'clock I was going to escape, disappear in a cloud of smoke. But he laughed at me and said I was out of my head. About eleven o'clock I asked him if I might smoke. He said he had no objections, so I filled my pipe and lighted it, and commenced walking the floor. I had about a pound of gunpowder in my pocket, and as I walked strewed it all over the floor. When the clock struck twelve I bid them good bye and told them I had to go. I then knocked the ashes out of my pipe, the powder ignited and a dazzling flame of fire shot across, around and all over the room, filling it with suffocating smoke. Before it cleared away, I hurled a chair through the window, sprang out and departed, leaving them to their own reflections. You know the rest."

☞ There is a very curious monument in Magnolia Cemetery, Charleston, erected by the late Henry Wise, an Englishman, over the grave of his wife. It is a triumphal arch representing the gate of heaven, ornamented with sea-shells and stained glass. A kneeling female figure rests under the arch, with a model ship and a casket containing a bouquet of shells, a wedding handkerchief, ring and necktie, a small English flag, and other curious relics. The whole is covered with a canvass canopy.

Eccentricities of the Flesh.

There are some people who are so peculiarly constituted that matters the most harmless to the mass of mankind act upon them in the most distressing manner. For instance, some persons cannot eat a lobster salad without its having a very curious effect upon their complexion. We know a lady who once indulged at supper time in a salad of this kind, and upon her return to the ball-room her face and neck immediately became covered with spots, obliging her to retire. Cockles and shrimps have the like effect upon persons thus peculiarly constituted. A medical friend tells us that eating veal gives a lady of his acquaintance the nettlerash, and that orange-peel has produced great nervous excitement.—Figs again give rise in some people to what is termed "formication," or a sensation like the tickling movement of ants upon the palate. The most extraordinary example of the adverse influences of a common article of food upon the human stomach is related by a surgeon of one of our public hospitals. He says that a patient of his cannot touch rice without the most extreme discomfort. "On one occasion, when at a dinner party, he felt the symptoms of rice poisoning coming on, and was, as usual, obliged to retire from the table, although he had not partaken of any dish ostensibly containing rice. It appeared, on investigation, that some white soup, which he had commenced his dinner, had been thickened with ground rice." In another case, similar symptoms have come on after a gentleman had partaken of bottled beer; this apparently extraordinary fact was explained by the presence in the bottle of a few grains of rice, which had been placed there to excite a secondary fermentation. But what is this to the perverse stomach of a gentleman in a case cited by Dr. Prout, who was poisoned by eating a mutton chop? The most digestible of all flesh to the ordinary mortal was to him positively as poisonous as though he had eaten toadstools. It was at first imagined by his physician that his dislike to this kind of food arose from mere fancy, and in order to test him, mutton, disguised, was served to him as other fresh meat, but always with the same result—violent vomiting and diarrhœa. Indeed, the effect upon him was so great that, had he been kept upon a mutton diet, Dr. Prout believed he would have died.—Cassel's Magazine.

THE ELEPHANT AND THE LOCOMOTIVE—A correspondent writing from Monghyr, India, says:

A very serious accident, brought about in a manner unknown, and perhaps unheard of since the establishment of railways, not only in India, but throughout the world, happened to an evening train between Sahebgunge and Mirzagore, about two miles from the latter station. At that time the No. 5 down goods train was approaching a mangoe tope, in which some seventy elephants were stationed. The red lights glaring in the distance, and the noise and smoke of the engine, would seem to have caused an awful consternation among the poor brutes, all of whom more or less tried to break away from their fastenings. One large male, however, the strongest and most courageous of the lot, became so infuriated that he broke his chain and rushed forward to intercept and encounter the supposed enemy.—He had scarcely placed himself on the line when the train was down upon him. He encountered it with head and tusks; but the animal strength proved no match for steam and machinery—the poor brute was knocked down and killed on the spot, and the engine, rebounding, ran off the line, and it and eleven carriages were capsized into a ditch. The fireman luckily managed to jump off in time, and the guard did the same, but the poor driver, named Smith, remained in his place, and received injuries from which it is not expected he will recover.

LITTLE WOMEN.—The little women is irrepressible. Too fragile to come into the fighting section of humanity, a puny creature whom one blow from a man's huge fist could annihilate, absolutely fearless, and insolent with the insolence which only those dare show who know that retribution cannot follow—what can be done with her? She is afraid of nothing, and to be controlled by no one. Sheltered behind her weakness as behind a triple shield of brass, the angriest man dare not touch her, while she provokes him to a combat in which his hands are tied. She gets her own way in everything and everywhere. At home and abroad she is equally dominant and irrepressible, equally free from obedience and from fear.

"Why, I think," said the editor, "I will stay as long as my money lasts."

"How disappointed I am," said his friend "I hoped you were going to stay a day or two."

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR:

JOHN W. GEARY,

OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY.

FOR JUDGE SUPREME COURT:

HENRY W. WILLIAMS,

OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Republican County Convention.

A Convention of the Union Republicans of Huntingdon county, will be held at the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on TUESDAY, AUGUST 10TH, 1869, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

This Convention will be composed of two delegates from each township, borough, ward and district.

The Republican voters of the county are requested to meet at their respective places of holding elections (except the West Ward of the Borough of Huntingdon, who will hold their election at the store room of N. C. Decker lately occupied by Johnston & Wattson,) on Saturday, the 7th day of August—in the townships, between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock, p. m., and in the Boroughs between the hours of 6 and 9 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to this Convention.

You are also requested to vote by ballot at the same time for or against the adoption of the Crawford County System, and instruct your delegates accordingly.

H. C. WEAVER,
Chairman County Committee.

PERISHABLE PROPERTY—Packer and Pershing.

☞"Packer made his money by buying coal lands cheap and then waiting for advancement. He can lose it by buying nominations dear and waiting for election."

☞Do we object to Packer because he is rich? Not by any means. We object to him because he would never have been nominated had he not been rich.

☞The last report upon the lay-delegation question in the Methodist Church, gives an aggregate vote of 187,605, of which 78,536 are affirmative and 29,071 negative, a majority of nearly 50,000 for lay participation.

☞The difference between Andy Johnson and Asa Packer is, Andy began with Alderman and went up. Packer began with President and is coming down. Who knows but that he will next turn up as a candidate for Alderman in Mauch Chunk.

☞The Democratic party, while it pretends to honor the soldier, takes up for its leader a man who coldly turned his back upon his country, in her darkest hours, and sought escape from the obligations of patriotism in a luxurious tour of Europe.

☞The reunion of the officers of the Union and Confederate armies who fought at Gettysburg is to be held on the battle field on the fourth of August. This meeting is called by the Gettysburg Memorial Association for the purpose of permanently locating the various stages of that battle.

☞McClellan once remarked to a friend that he would not again put up with the indignities which he had to endure from politicians during the campaign of 1864, to be President a hundred times.

And before Asa Packer gets through this campaign, he will be heard to cry out in all the agony of his soul: "Spare my money-bags from my friends!"

☞If a man must be worth twenty millions of dollars before he is eligible to a Democratic nomination for Governor, and it costs him one hundred thousand dollars to secure that nomination, how much will it cost him to be elected? An answer desired on the second Tuesday of October next.

☞We suggest to those Democratic editors who attended Billy McMullin's Convention, and had their pockets picked that they make out their bills and send them to Asa Packer for payment, and see that they are paid, before they agree to give him their hearty support. What say you, Traugh?

ON DIT.—That the editor of the Altoona Vindicator, who was a delegate to the State Convention, and was instructed to support Gen. Cass for Governor violated his instructions by voting for Packer. Had Packer's money anything to do with anything? The Blair folks are cross about it, and make some pretty broad assertions.

☞During the war the Hon. C. L. Vallandigham, the noted rebel from Ohio, was the invited guest of the Hon. Asa Packer, Democratic candidate for Governor, at his residence in Mauch Chunk. Soldiers of the republic, and loyal citizens, remember the old adage, "Show me your company, and I'll tell you who you are."

Asa Packer.

We have carefully waded through a long sketch of the life of Asa Packer, written by a Democratic admirer, which extols all his virtues and claims everything for him which he is entitled to, and we have just three points in the whole article. Mr. Packer has an unimpeachable private character, which all admit. So has Gov. Geary. Mr. Packer has no advantages over Geary in that respect. But let us come to what the sketch claims for Mr. Packer as great virtues. He was born in Connecticut and came to this State when seventeen years of age, and settled in Susquehanna county. He apprenticed himself to a carpenter and joiner, and "served his time," as all other good boys do. He followed his trade for several years; then went to clearing some wild land which he had bought. Becoming tired of that, he went to Lehigh Valley, bought a canal-boat and freighted coal from Mauch Chunk to Philadelphia. After a while in company with a brother, and with the aid of an uncle's money he started a store. He next became associated with the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. In the course of a few years he had made considerable money, so much so that he was able, without aid from any one, to build the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which eventually was the means of his amassing his present colossal fortune. He took advantage of the necessities of the Government during the war, and while Gen. Geary was in the field bearing his breast to the bullets of the enemy, Asa Packer was furnishing coal to the Government at enormous prices.

Such in a nut-shell is the rise and progress of Mr. Packer up to 1866, when he founded what is known as the Lehigh University, and endowed it with $500,000. A large sum, truly, out of $20,000,000. We believe it is the only sum he ever gave to any institution of learning or anything else of a public nature.

Now this is all very good, and should stand out in bold relief as an example to the young men of to-day, to exert themselves in making a name and a fortune. But we see nothing remarkable in all this. We cannot see that because Mr. Packer has been successful in business and has become as rich as Crœsus, any good reason why he should be named as the standard bearer of any party. His own friends do not claim that he is a statesman. They do not claim that he is at all fitted for the Chief Executive office of this Commonwealth. The strongest argument in his behalf is that he is worth twenty millions, and it is the only reason under the Heavens why he was chosen as the standard-bearer of the Democratic party. They hope, by a liberal use of Mr. Packer's money, to ride into power, over the honest masses of the people. In Gens. Hancock, Cass or McCandless, the Democracy could have presented men of ability, but as they were not blessed with as much of this world's goods as their nominee, they were thrown aside for the very weakest man except in dollars and cents, that could have been chosen. We have no intention of doing injustice to Mr. Packer, but in all earnestness we can see nothing in his nomination, but an "itching after the flesh pots," for his party have no idea of electing him.

☞Is "John Chinaman" to be the same source of trouble in this country as "Sambo" was? we are led to exclaim on perusing the columns of our daily exchanges. The Republican convention of California is willing to give the negro a vote, but it "opposes Chinese suffrage in any form." Is this consistency? Truly, the Chinese are no worse than the negroes; but the secret of opposition lies in the fact that California is overrun with the former while it has none of the latter; but what they have against the Chinese is not known to us. They come from a nation that is superior in some arts to America, in agriculture they excel, and they have shown their ability for self-government better than any nation on the face of the globe. We hope the Chinamen will not be slighted, or be deemed more unfit for the rights of an American citizen than the negro.

☞We don't wish to be understood to oppose Mr. Packer because he is rich; not at all. His riches are good enough. He has made some little use of his twenty millions by donating $500,000 to the Lehigh University—by giving sums to aid the Democratic party in its election campaigns; and lastly, by giving his money-bags to his friends in the Democratic Convention to secure his nomination. Mr. Packer can enjoy his money as he wills. He obtained it all, perhaps, honestly, and he can dispose of it as he chooses. It is own money, and if he knows so well how to make it, he ought to know well how to keep it; but if he wants to spend it in securing his election as he did in securing his nomination, he has a good opportunity of doing so.

☞A man was in town on Saturday to see the show, who is going to vote for Asa Packer and the whole Democratic ticket again this fall, because his father was a Democrat! We attempted to explain matters to him, but could get no other reply than that, he was a Democrat, and he didn't know why. Poor deluded creature, in this enlightened day!

Awake! Arouse!

Under the above caption the Pittsburgh Gazette says "the Republicans of Pennsylvania are apathetic and indifferent, the Democrats are not. Never were they more vigilant and laborious than at this very moment. If hard and persistent work will give them the crown of victory in October, they mean to win and wear it. True, they are not making an active campaign, in the ordinary meaning of that term; nor do they intend to make such an one unless forced into it, by movements on the Republican side. They believe their chances to be better with a "still hunt" than with a "loud" hunt. For many years past they have joined in well defined issues, have gone before the people, with all the powers of argumentation and appeal they could master, and have been beaten at all points. Repeated defeats have not only taught them caution, but have dictated the employment of a different strategy.

They are aware that the Republicans, in a certain sense, are seated with victories, and lulled, by over confidence, that their ascendancy cannot be shaken. These are both delusive and perilous states of mind for individuals or parties, charged in any manner with high missions, to fall into. While they remain therein, they are, with comparative ease, taken at disadvantage and overcome.

What is most needed, just now, is for the leaders of the Republican organization to take an exact view of the situation and then adopt the measures which are needful. The masses await the signals of those they have chosen for that purpose, and are impatient to respond to any proper call upon their activity.

The Republicans of the State cannot afford at this crisis to lose the Governor and the balance of power in the Supreme Court. Important measures remain to be consummated, and vital principles to be established by judicial decrees.

A year from next winter the State will have to be divided into Congressional and Legislative districts. To surrender this power into the hands of the Democrats, will be to remit the State into their possession to be wrenched away again only by prodigious outlays of time and effort.

In view of all the facts we appeal to Republicans, here and throughout the Commonwealth, to shake off their apathy, to cease bickerings and contentions, to promptly close up their ranks, and enter vigorously upon the work before them. A simultaneous onset, such as we made last year, and on several previous occasions, will quickly decide the fate of the field in our favor. Up, men! and at them!"

☞That sterling Republican paper, the Berks and Schuylkill Journal, thus speaks of Packer's principal backers:

"Frank W. Hughes, that avowed and notorious rebel sympathizer during the war, was the author of the resolutions of the Convention which nominated Judge Packer. Wm. A. Wallace, of coffee grounds naturalization fame, was the chief engineer inside of the Convention; Alderman McMullen, the ruler of Fourth Ward of Philadelphia, which can give more Democratic votes than it has inhabitants, was the Chairman of the Committee on Organization; and Brick Pomeroy, of the La Crosse Democrat, the eulogist of John Wilkes Booth, was the outside engineer for Packer, and the only speaker at the meeting held to ratify his nomination. Patriots and soldiers, and honest decent men, such are the leaders who have furnished you with a candidate, and ask you to join them in securing his election."

☞"Brick" Pomeroy, the great apostle of Democracy, says he "would repudiate the national debt in two seconds if he had the power." Again he says, "we dare urge repudiation, we dare head a mob and batter down the vaults where our masters keep the notes which they say we must pay." This same "Brick" was sent from New York to Harrisburg to engineer Packer through the Democratic Convention, and you are asked to support men who hold and endorse the same principles that the unscrupulous Brick has the boldness to advocate through the columns of his paper. Working men look to your interests before you surrender yourselves to the enemies of your country.

Asa Formally Accepts the Nomination

Mr. Packer writes to the committee appointed to notify him of his nomination, that he accepts. In his letter he uses the word "Democratic" but once. Leaving that one word out, his letter would answer the purpose of any candidate that was ever nominated by any party. Strange how queer, that the standard bearer of a party should so studiously avoid all the isms of that "red-hot" party, and round his sentences so as to avoid a word so magic in the ears of the "army of disinterested patriots"

☞There are some who growl at President Grant, and pronounce him a failure. The New York Herald remarks:

"Give President Grant a chance. What can be expected in six months, and the hot season on at that? The grumblers should remember that Rome was not built in a day. Why should President Grant be expected to make his mark after only a few short months of civic authority? It took him a longer time than that to 'get out of the Wilderness.' Reflect, ye growlers, upon the result of that campaign!"

Political Powder-Flask.

The Democratic P. P. P. P.'s—Packer's Purse, Pershing and Plunder.

The Democrats have little to say this year about the "Yank Williams," since Packer is from the same Yankee State.

If Asa Packer is the "poor man's candidate" because he has $20,000,000, how much more does he need to be the "rich man's candidate?"

One Democratic paper, the Bedford Gazette, has the boldness to prate about hard times. Can it tell its readers that Packer is hard up?

Carpet-baggers are just now in favor among the Democracy. Packer is from Connecticut, and Rosecrans, it is discovered, is a citizen of California.

Not one Democratic journal has spoken against repudiation, while the Republican press stands as a unit to the determination that the entire national debt shall be paid.

The registry act ought to be pronounced unconstitutional say the Democrats. Reason: It will deprive them of using coffee colored naturalization papers.

The New York Herald thinks "the fight in Pennsylvania for Governor is between money and glory. Packer has the money, and Geary has the glory and the inside track."

The new Democratic cry of "let us have P's"—means, literally, let us have a piece of Packer's money bags. The demand is so general that it will take a good many p's to go round.

Packer's personal reputation is above reproach. So was Seymour's, but did that save the Democratic party from defeat. It is not the men—it is the record of the party.

A pill for Packer—the seventh plank of his platform, which declares that the Democracy should "gratefully remember" the soldiers. How can he swallow it and try to beat a soldier candidate?

The Harrisburg Patriot says if the Republican papers make so much fuss about Gov. Geary paying the State debt, Packer will pay it all off. When he does this there is no fear of him being elected.

It is said Packer is to give one million for the necessary expenses of the canvass. If so, what is our county's share. We suppose whoever is elected Chairman of the County Committee will see to it.

The Boston Advertiser well says:—"The issue in the political contest in Pennsylvania the coming fall is one of dollars and sense. The Democrats have the dollars and the Republicans the sense!"

As a packer, Asa Packer cast over Cass, an overcast that cast over a $100,000 pack. The people will now cast Packer and Packer's pack where Cass was cast, and thus as a packer, Asa Packer will be overcast.

Democratic ticket.—First edition, Harrisburg, July 14, 1869.—Packer and Pershing.

Second edition, revised and corrected at the polls October 12, 1869.—Erratum, For Packer read Packed; for Pershing perishing.

The Pensylvania Democracy have nominated twenty millions dollars for Governor. It is not intended to make them all Governors, only what is left of them after the campaign is over.—Step up, gentlemen, and vote for your golden calf.

A Democratic exchange, speaking of Asa Packer's nomination, says: "It was a sensible thing in the State Convention to select a man possessing both dollars and sense." Exactly, the dollars come ahead of his sense, a long ways, or else he never would have been nominated. It now remains to be seen whether his dollars weigh more than the sense of the people.

"The Poor Man's Candidate."

Asa Packer and the Boatmen---He is Ducked in the Lehigh---A Reminiscence of 1843.

[From the Reading Daily Times.]

Hon. Asa Packer, Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, is immensely rich. He is said to be worth twenty millions of dollars. It is this great wealth that has secured him the nomination—as in other respects he is a very ordinary man—not remarkable for talent or distinguished for public service of any sort.

Twenty millions of dollars is a large sum for any one man to accumulate in a life time. It could never have been accumulated by honest labor. In Judge Packer's case his colossal fortune was built up by the sweat of other men's brows, rather than his own.—He became rich by grinding the faces of the poor. As a proof of this we propose to refer back to some incidents in his business career which have come to our knowledge from reliable sources.

Twenty-six years ago Asa Packer's business was that of boating on the Lehigh and Delaware canals. He made large contracts to ship coal to New York and Philadelphia. He owned a number of boats himself, and in order to fulfill his contracts, hired all the boats and boatmen he could get at so much per ton for transportation.—But it seems that this "Poor Man's Candidate" did not pay his men living prices, and a general "strike" of the boatmen employed by him was the consequence. It further appears that while this strike was going on Mr. Packer attempted to break it up by forcing the men to work for him at half pay. He visited South Easton where the boats were laying moored during the strike, and attempted in person to compel his men to go to work at the old rates. But so violent was the feeling against him that he was seized by the men, thrown into the Lehigh, and would have been drowned but for a timely rescue. So exasperated were the boatmen against Packer, that they drove the man who had saved his life from the ground with stones. This incident is well remembered by the older residents of Easton and by all the old boatmen on the Lehigh. They characterize Packer as a hard man—reaping where he had not sown and gathering where he had not strewed. There are hundreds of Democrats in Carbon and adjoining counties who will refuse to vote for him on that account.

The following articles, copied from the Easton Whig, of 1843, give a short history of the Boatman's Strike on the Lehigh Canal, in that year, against the low wages and low freight policy of Packer and the coal transportation companies in which he was interested:

[From the Easton Whig of July 14, 1836.]

A STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES.

The boatmen engaged in the transportation of coal for the Mauch Chunk and other companies in that region, have tied up their boats at South Easton and refuse to continue in the service until an advance of prices is allowed. Three hundred boats are moored in and near South Easton, and six or eight hundred boatmen and hands have been idling around there for several days. To their credit it must be said that so far they have conducted themselves quietly and orderly. They say the price is too low to enable them to support themselves and families, and that they are compelled to ask an advance. They have heretofore received 50 cents per ton in good money for transporting to Philadelphia, and they now demand 77 cents and a porportionate advance for all intermediate places.

THE COAL TRADE.

The difficulty between the boatmen engaged in the transportation of coal and the companies has not yet been removed. The companies do not, it appears, consider themselves able to grant the advance in prices asked.—Nearly all the boats engaged in the coal trade, about 400 in number, are moored opposite this place. The empty boats lie in the dam, and present the appearance of a floating village; the loaded ones are in the canal and cover an extent of about two miles.—On Saturday forenoon the boatmen visited our borough in procession, with music and banners. About 200 were mounted on horses, and as many more were on foot. The procession was headed by the tow-path or driver boys, and the rear was brought up by a large number mounted on mules. The whole presented an unusual and very singular appearance, and caused quite an excitement. The horses, with two exceptions, were ridden without saddles and guided with halters, and many of the men were barefooted and appeared to be in want of new shirts, all of which had a tendency to excite a sympathetic feeling in their favor.

[From the Easton Whig of July 26, 1843.]

All the coal boats continue idle at South Easton and its vicinity. A majority of the boatmen have gone home and entered into other employments.

[From the Easton Whig of August 2, 1843.]

THE LEHIGH BOATMEN.

The excitement created by the large number of boatmen who continue at this place on a strike rose to quite a threatening aspect on Monday and yesterday, and from all appearances a crisis is near at hand. On Monday morning, Asa Packer, owner of some of the boats, who resides at Mauch Chunk, attempted to move them off, when he was seized and thrown into the Lehigh river, and another person who assisted him out was afterwards driven from the ground with stones. Processes were issued for the apprehension of the leaders, but the officers were not able to apprehend them.

Yesterday the Mauch Chunk Company had a conference with a committee of the boatmen, but no arrangement could be effected to remove the unfortunate state of things. The boatmen, the Companies and the State are sustaining a great loss by the suspension of the coal trade, which has already existed for two or three weeks. The peace as well as the interests of the community require that the evil should be removed and the laws enforced and respected.

[From the Easton Whig, August 30, 1843.]

After a delay of more than two months the usual activity and bustle of business is again seen along the line of the Mauch Chunk canal. The Companies have agreed to pay the boatmen 10 cents per ton in addition to their former rates of freight, together with their allowance of other minor anvantages.

☞Wm. A. Galbraith, of Erie, having refused to act as Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, a Col. Mutcheler, of Easton, has been appointed to perform the dirty work for the "P's." The notorious Sam Randall, as also B. F. Meyers, of the Harrisburg Patriot, were applicants for the position, and we must confess we are a little curious to know why they were so persistently thrown aside.

We do not know whether Senter, the candidate for Governor in Tennessee, is in favor of woman suffrage or not, but he certainly prizes woman's influence. At the close of a recent stump speech he said: "Ladies, a word before we part—when the day for election arrives, get up early, prepare a good breakfast, have the shaving water and towel ready, let nothing but smiles and cheerfulness possess you, and when the good man starts for the polls go with him to the gate, put your arm about his neck, kiss him, then ask him to vote for Senter."

A Miss Gertrude Mann created quite a sensation in Adrian, Michigan, on Friday, by attempting to walk twenty five miles in six hours and twenty-three minutes, on a trotting track.—She accomplished her task easily, and wanted to keep on and complete fifty miles, but was dissuaded by her friends In the crowd of spectators was Weston. This wonderful female pedestrian lives in Rome township, near by.

Edward Halpin, an elderly man, fell from Table Rock, Niagara Falls, on the 26th, a distance of 180 feet, and was instantly killed.

Mr. A. H. Lee, of Prairie de Rocher, Ill., who drew the Crosby Opera House, died last week.

Corporeal Punishment in Schools.

Since the 1st of January last each assistant teacher in Pittsburg has been required to send to the City Superintendent of Education a correct list of the corporeal punishment in each school during the month. It is significant that the number gradually diminished within five months from 300 to 100. The Commercial says:

What has caused the large diminution in the number of corporeal punishments? Doubtless the simple fact that teachers and principals are alike ashamed of frequent whippings, and have no ambition to head the list in that line. The floggings in the schoolroom, like those in the family, are not subjects for boasting, and this furnishes a fair argument against corporeal punishment. People should not be ashamed of acts which they know and feel to be right. We do not say that punishment should never be inflicted by the parent and teacher, but we believe that in nine cases out of ten the whippings in the family and the school are unnecessary and useless, and brutalize rather than benefit the children. With a diminution of more than two-thirds in the number of punishments, the principals report that the discipline in the schools is better than ever before. This is certainly encouraging, and, under the new regulation, may we not hope that the day is not far distant when the rod will be abolished altogether, or but rarely used ?

Messrs. Editors:—The name of J. E. Smucker, Esq., formerly of Brady township, will be presented to the Republican Convention for renomination to the office of Register and Recorder. In doing so we present the name of a soldier who was a hero in many hard-fought battles, and who bears the marks of three wounds, one of which was through the left elbow, and disables him for life. It has been the rule and custom of our party for many years, to give two terms in said office : for the reason that it is to the interest of every citizen of the county to have in that office an officer acquainted with the business, and enabled to explain the law upon matters pertaining thereto, and which knowledge cannot be thoroughly obtained in one term. We therefore hope that the citizens of each election district will instruct their delegates to renominate Mr. S., and thereby endorse this good rule, and also prove that this disabled soldier can have extended to him the same privileges that have been given to other Registers and Recorders for the last forty-five years. BRADY TOWNSHIP.

To the editors of the Globe ;—Sirs :—I notice the name of J. E. Smucker, Esq., as a candidate for the office of Register and Recorder of your county, subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention. I know not whether this letter will add to the strength of Mr. S., but in order to do him justice as a soldier, I may state that I was one of the commanding officers of the company to which Mr. S. belonged and know that a braver soldier never shouldered a musket. He was always ready and willing to do his duty towards his country and in many hard fought battles displayed true courage and patriotism and whilst engaged in the bloody battle of Cold Harbor on June 3d, 1864, he was severely wounded through the left elbow, which wound caused him much pain and suffering and perhaps will disable him for life. This soldier is worthy of any favors that may be shown him, and as we learn he has fully demonstrated his capability of performing the duties of said office, the party will do a good thing by giving him a renomination.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

MESSRS. EDITORS :—You will certainly consider that a mean spirit in any man who hates to see his neighbors prosper, and you will certainly deem that a despicable spirit which would discourage enterprise in a town because one or more men are directly benefitted by it. It is a pity some men are so near sighted as to think that if they can only prevent improvements in a town, they thereby throw obstacles in the way of the advancement of those who take the lead in such a movement. There are many who are so envious of another's progress in the world that they do all they can to drag him down, and if he makes a move in one direction, they are the first to follow in his wake and try to pull down what he has done. If a man wants to see his town improve, he will find a host who are ready with the weapons of slander, insinuation and discouraging remarks, to prevent the consummation of his laudable desire. Such men, no matter how much they long to see good institutions of art or learning established in our midst, will do nothing to bring them here ; and if anybody does take the initiative steps to establish them, they tell him it won't pay, or it will do our town no good, and too often the man of enterprise gives way to their insinuations. This should not be. The voice of such pleaders should not be heeded, and we believe there are enough men who have the good of our town at heart, if they were only approached in a proper way, that would actively co-operate in helping to revive the now dormant energies of our town, and develop the many natural advantages it possesses. It is a pity that the drones of our town can do more than the men of energy, and yet they do. To one improvement that has been effected by the men of energy, we can point to five that the drones have prevented. We need not particularize the objects that were to be here, and yet are not. We can only see how few of the many enterprises talked of, have assumed the shape of reality. And they are too few, compared to what might have been here if the drones had not prevented them. IMPROVEMENT.

In Orbisonia, July 17, 1869, DAVID S. BAKER, aged 32 years, 11 months and 3 days.

The deceased was a son of the late Jacob Baker, of Springfield township, Huntingdon county, Pa., and was one of eight brothers that served his country in the late rebellion, he being a member of Co. D, 110th Regt., P. V., and was wounded in the battle of Winchester, Va., March —, 1862. He was a charter member of Orbisonia Lodge, No. 640, I. O. of O. F., and was one of the principal workers in establishing the order in Orbisonia. He was an industrious, upright and accomplished business man, and was universally respected and esteemed by a very large circle of acquaintances. A large number of the members of the order, and others, accompanied his remains to their last resting place and performed the last duty that man can render his fellow-man.

The following preamble and resolutions were reported by a committee consisting of B. F. Chilcoat, T. M. Kelly and G. W. Cornelius, and unanimously adopted by the Lodge :

Whereas, It has pleased the All-wise Ruler of the Universe in his providence to remove from us our beloved brother, P. G., David S. Baker, therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of brother Baker, our order has lost an energetic and consistent member, the community a good citizen, and his friends a dutiful son and an affectionate brother.

Resolved, That we sympathize with his bereaved mother and brothers in their hour of great distress, and that we commend them to that great head of the church which was so much comfort to their departed friend in his last hours.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the editors of the Huntingdon Globe and Monitor for publication, and also that a copy of the same be handed to the mother of the deceased.

Resolved, That the Lodge room shall be draped in mourning, and that all the members of the Lodge in respect to our deceased brother, wear a badge of mourning for thirty days.

Orbisonia, July 24, 1869.

The following resolutions were adopted by Arrapahoe Tribe, No. 68, I. O. of R. M.:

Whereas, The Great Spirit, in his wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our councils, our beloved brother, David S. Baker, therefore

Resolved, That in our bereavement we bow in humble submission to the will of the Great Spirit, and while we mourn the loss of a true and tried brother, we are consoled in the immortal hope that he has gone to the "happy hunting grounds" where the council fire of love and glory burnoth forever.

Resolved, That the friends of our deceased brother have our sympathies and condolence in their bereavement.

Resolved, That our wigwam be draped in mourning for thirty suns, and a copy of these proceedings be transmitted to the friends of the deceased, and published in the county papers.

CELEBRATED
AND EYE GLASSES.

The large and increasing sales of these
SUPERIOR GLASSES
Is a sure proof of their usefulness. We were satisfied that they would be appreciated here as elsewhere, and that the reality of the advantages offered to wearers of our beautiful lenses, viz.: the ease and comfort, the assured and readily ascertained improvement of the sight, and the brilliant assistance they give in all cases, were in themselves so apparent on trial, that the result could not be otherwise than it has, in the almost general adoption of our CELEBRATED PERFECTED SPECTACLES by the residents of this locality.

With a full knowledge of the value of the assertion, we claim that they are the most perfect optical aids ever manufactured. To those needing Spectacles, we afford at all times an opportunity of procuring the best and most desirable.

BAUGH'S
RAW BONE
SUPER-PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

TRADE MARK

STANDARD WARRANTED.

We offer to Farmers, the present fall season, BAUGH'S RAW BONE SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME as being highly improved.

Baugh's Raw Bone Super Phosphate is, as its name indicates, prepared by dissolving Raw Bones in Oil of Vitriol—that is, bones that have not been deprived of their organic matter—the grease and glue—by burning or boiling. It, therefore, presents to the use of the farmer all the valuable properties of Raw Bones in a highly concentrated form—rendering it at once quick in action and very permanent.

☞Farmers are recommended to purchase of the dealer located in their neighborhood. In sections where no dealer is yet established, the PHOSPHATE may be procured directly from the undersigned.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of confirming or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, indolent tumors may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

McGUIRE'S

SPANISH HAIR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR, And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dressing has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S

Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country, and is warranted free from all poisonous substances. This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it cures endless headach's.

McGUIRE'S

WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.

All those who are in fears of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth.
